COURT TERM OPEN MONDAY

DOCKET IS LOADED WITH CASES AWAITING HEARING.

GRAND JURY TO MEET

Bank Closings To Be Investigated, It Is Said.—Petit Jury Summoned for Wednesday.

Circuit court will convene Monday in its regular October term with Judge John M. Dawson on the bench. The docket for this term is very heavy, due to many cases being continued from the April term, and also because a good many new cases were filed for this term.

Virgil Rathbun, circuit clerk, says the October docket is the heaviest he has issued since he has been in office.

The grand jury will meet at 9 o'clock Monday morning and Judge Dawson will deliver the charge to it at that time. It is understood an investigation will be made of the three banks in the county which closed several months ago. Liquor and gaming complaints, it is said, will also be investigated.

Members of the petit jury are summoned for Wednesday morning. While there are many cases on the docket, it is thought that many of the cases will not be for trial before a jury.

The parole docket is scheduled for Monday and there are forty-four cases.

On the equity docket there are eighty cases, of which twenty are divorce cases.

The trial docket is scheduled for Wednesday. There are 151 cases on that docket. Many of these cases are for notes and accounts.

Fifty-one cases are on the criminal docket.

All Is Ready for Achievement Day

County 4-H Clubs To Hold Contests Here Tomorrow—Baby Beef And Pig Show On Streets.

Everything has been put in readiness for the annual Achievement Day exercises for all the 4-H Clubs of Nodaway County, which are to be held in Maryville tomorrow. The Baby Beef and Pig Show will be held on Main street between Third and Fourth streets and the garment making exhibits will be in the Robinson building at 209 North Main street.

She had checked on more than one hundred records kept by the boys and girls in the county, who are club members.

Miss Lois Martin, of Columbia, who is well known throughout Nodaway County because of her many visits here in the interest of 4-H Club work and other activities in which the extension department of the University of Missouri is interested, will judge the girls' exhibits.

S. F. Russell, animal husbandry expert from the Missouri College of Agriculture at Columbia, will judge both the calves and pigs.

The Baby Beef Show will be held from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock, following the completion of the girls' judging contests, which are scheduled to start at 1 o'clock. The prizes in all contests will be awarded at 4 o'clock.

J. Ross Fleetwood, county farm agent, was busy today completing final arrangements for the affair.

Debaters and Public Speakers Are Trained

Lyceum Club at High School Will Replace Debating Club—Mrs. Vern Manley Is Sponsor.

The Debating Club of the Maryville High School no longer exists. It has been organized into a Lyceum Club which encourages aspirants for debate as well as extemporaneous speaking, oration and declamation. Mrs. Vern Manley is the sponsor. The speakers club will meet every Thursday.

At the meeting yesterday, Mildred Sandison discussed how to avoid the repetition of "and," "but" and "or" in making a speech. A short reading was given by Mary Jackson.

The World Court was the feature of discussion with Mildred Wiles, Nettie Russell, Cleo King, Pauline Nichols and M. Neva Wilkerson speaking on the subject.

The local chapter of the National Forensic League which has seven members who have achieved speaking success in high school also aids in the advancement of higher appreciation of the speaking department in high school.

CALL ISSUED FOR MEETING

FIGHT ON PROPOSAL NO. 4 TO OPEN NEXT THURSDAY.

'JOINT RESPONSIBILITY'

State Cannot "Nullify" Eighteenth Amendment, Says Letter Going To 500 Persons.

A mass meeting to organize Nodaway County against Proposition No. 4 (to repeal the Missouri liquor laws) is called for next Thursday afternoon in letters sent out today by the temporary organization formed last week, composed of Uel W. Lamkin, chairman; Fred Wolfers, vice-chairman; and Mrs. Charles Gaugh, secretary.

The letter is being sent to about 500 persons in the county, asking that the widest announcement be made and that each of these persons extend a general invitation to others to attend the meeting.

The gathering will be held at 2 o'clock, probably in the courthouse. If the courthouse is not available a later announcement will tell the alternative place of meeting.

"Proposition No. 4," the letter says, "is placed on the ballot through the initiative and referendum, and, if adopted, would repeal the laws of Missouri regarding not only the prohibition but also the regulation of the liquor traffic. If adopted, the sole agencies by which any police power could be exercised over the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors would be the Federal government.

"The enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is a joint responsibility of state and nation. An action which would withdraw the states' support in enforcing the law is virtually nullification of the Constitution of the United States.

"We must not be overconfident. It is true the two large political parties have declared against the proposition. But the influences which are responsible for the submission of the proposition are now quietly but actively at work for its adoption."

The mass meeting, it is said, will "take any steps necessary to acquaint the people of the county with the conditions and to form any permanent organization desirable."

STARTS DRIVE FOR DEFENSE

EFFORT MADE TO SHIFT BLAME FOR BIG CLAIM.

GOFF TELLS HIS SIDE

New York, Oct. 1.—Harry M. Daugherty, former attorney-general, had nothing to do with the approval of the attorney-general's office of the seven-million-dollar claim of Richard Merton, German financier, Senator Guy B. Goff of West Virginia, testified today at the trial of Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian.

Goff was assistant attorney-general under Daugherty and approved the claim. After identifying the claim papers bearing his signature, Goff emphatically declared that he had never spoken to Daugherty, to the late Jesse Smith, Daugherty's personal friend, or to the late John T. King, who received $441,000 for putting the claim through, regarding the claim.

"Was your approval of the claim of the American Metals Co. influenced by any other consideration than your own views?" Goff was asked.

"I was never influenced by Mr. Daugherty in my action with reference to the claims but only by my own judgment," Senator Goff replied.

The Senator declared he never knew John T. King and never had any conference or communication with him. Merton had previously testified that he had given the papers to either King or Smith.

Senator Goff also testified that the late President Harding assisted in the examination of the American Metals Co.'s claim against the alien property custodian's office. This testimony was developed during redirect examination of Senator Goff by Max Steuer, chief counsel for Daugherty, after Goff had been on the stand since early today.

Goff testified that the matter of investigation, which involved a claim of Richard Merton, German industrialist, to the seven-million-dollar property of the American Metal Co., on behalf of the Swiss Society, was taken up by President Harding in 1922 and that the President had sent two letters to Daugherty concerning the case.

One of these letters, written into the evidence, stated that the President had instructed the alien property custodian's office to make a complete check on the claim.

EIGHT DEAD IN TRAIN CRASH

SOUTHERN PACIFIC FLYER HITS BUS; MANY HURT.

RELIEF BEING RUSHED

Accident Occurs Near Sacramento, Calif., and Was Worst In History of Line In That State.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Eight persons are known to have been killed and many others injured when the westbound Overland Limited, crack Southern Pacific passenger train, leaped out of a dripping fog and struck a bus loaded with passengers twenty-one miles west of Sacramento shortly before noon today, according to reports received at Southern Pacific headquarters here.

The accident occurred near the town of Gibson, twenty-one miles west of Sacramento. Details of the crash are meager but it is known that at least eight passengers of the bus were killed.

It is believed that the bus was one of the big auto stages making the run between Oakland and Portland.

A special train is being rushed from Sacramento with nurses, doctors and medial supplies.

The Overland was not wrecked by the crash, later reports indicated. The bus was struck at a crossing just outside Gibson and was carried on by the locomotive for several hundred feet before the train stopped, reports said.

British Miners Are Returning to Work

About One-Fifth Of Number On Strike Are Back At Pits—International Federation Rejects Proposal.

London, Oct. 1.—The last hope of the British coal miners now on strike went glimmering today when a Central miners federation now in session trial news dispatrh from Ostend stated that the international miners federation now in session there had rejected the proposal of the English mine leaders for an international coal strike.

With starvation staring them in the face and cold weather rapidly approaching, the miners were going back to the pits in large numbers, their leaders being powerless to stop them.

Two hundred thousand, or one-fifth the total number of miners, had returned to work today.

COL. WILLIAMS, MARINE, DEAD

DROWNED WHEN CAR PLUNGED INTO BAY.

AT "COCKTAIL" PARTY

U. S. Officer Gains Nationwide Notoriety When Accused By Gen. Smedley Butler Of Intoxication.

San Francisco, Oct. 1.—Col. Alexander Williams, marine corps officer, was drowned here early today when his car plunged over a bank and into the water.

Witnesses saw the car as it sped down the embarcadero, tore its way through the curbing and plunged into the bay. They said the machine was traveling fast and swerved in an alarming fashion.

Police were notified immediately and the car was raised to the surface in a few hours. Colonel Williams was trapped in the car and had no chance to escape.

The victim of the accident this morning gained nationwide notoriety in San Diego last spring when General Smedley Butler, his commanding officer, accused him of appearing in public in an intoxicated condition.

Col. Williams was found guilty at the court martial. The trial was the aftermath of the famous "cocktail" party which was held at his home and at which General Butler was a guest.

Following this incident, Colonel Williams was sent to San Francisco where he has been in charge of recruiting for the marine corps.

Says Jack Dempsey Was "Self Poisoned"

New York Physician Declares Former Heavyweight Champion Not Capable of Putting Up Best Performance.

New York, Oct. 1.—Jack Dempsey was "self poisoned" on the night of Sept. 23 and therefore was not capable of putting up his best performance when he lost his title as heavyweight boxing champion of the world.

This was the verdict rendered today by Dr. Frank H. Russell, attending physician, following an examination of the former champion in his suite at the Hotel Belmont shortly after noon today. Dr. Russell found his patient "very much improved" and predicted he would be able to leave his quarters within a day or two if he desired.

Mrs. Irvin Bartram spent the day in St. Joseph.

FAIR WEATHER FOR PREMIERE

PLENTY OF SUNSHINE IN NEW YORK TODAY.

YANKS ARE FAVORITES

Money Bet on World's Series Will Run Into Millions of Dollars—Odds Are 6 to 5.

New York, Oct. 1.—Fair and warmer is promised by the weather man for the opening game of the world's series here tomorrow. Calm balmy temperatures prevailed today and there was plenty of sunshine.

Heavy speculation in Wall street over the outcome of the series reached high tide today when it was announced that approximately $300,000 alone had been placed with the firm of W. L. Darnell and Co. on the chances of the Yanks and Cardinals.

With other Wall street houses taking on all comers, it was estimated that the amount of money wagered on the Yanks and Cardinals had run into millions of dollars, with more on the way as the hour for the series approached. In spite of the influx of St. Louis money, the Yanks continued to rule favorites at odds of 6 to 5.

It seems probable that these figures will prevail, at least until after tomorrow's game. There will be a hasty hedging of bets, however, and a consequent shifting of odds if the Cards win the first game.

Before nightfall, the customary line of all-night vigil will begin to form at the stadium's gates for the big game tomorrow. For this game, too, the Yanks are quoted by Darnells as favorites, largely because of the fact that Herb Pennock, star left-fielder, will hurl for the Yanks and also because the Cards will be operating in strange surroundings. The Cardinals' choice, it is said, will either be Grover Cleveland Alexander, veteran right-hander, or "Lefty" Sherdell.

The odds of this game remain at 6 to 3 and there are indications that the price may be a permanent one. Indeed, there seems to be no breaking of confidence in the Yanks, it being estimated that the odds on the series may go to 13 to 10 by tonight.

Red Cross Head Declares "Hotel and Tourist Business" Is Chief Interest There.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Florida officials "from the governor down" and real estate operators were severely criticized today by John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross, for minimizing the loss in the hurricane of September 18 and thus handicapping relief work.

JACK STRAWS.

That is what the Florida photographs look like. Gigantic jackstraws tossed together in confusing mounds to make a child's game.

Or like a child's play village, with its cardboard castles and gas stations, its tin towers and railway depots, its crossing gates and derricks made of his toy building steel, after he is tired of it and throws it in a heap before beginning over again to build a better village on a new and nobler plan.

Jackstraws and toys our vaunted structures are, when fighting the forces of nature.

But we can rebuild our cities as the child rebuilds his. And the new achievements are always sounder than the ones before. The works of man grows by defeat and re-accomplishment, and the mind of man grows with them.

RUSSIA'S HYDRO.

The fact that an American syndicate is willing to spend $55,000,000 on water-electric power on the Dnieper River is of almost untold importance not only to Russia and to America but to the whole world.

The powers of some of the eastern countries seem definitely on the wane, their best having come and gone ages ago, though they may see much new and good yet. But Russia is a child with its growth and life all before it.

When one considers what electric power has done for America in the way of industrial and cultural development, the possibilities afforded by a great hydro development for Russia make one gasp. Light to work by, light to read by, power to make wheels go round, releasing human energy from hodden drudgery to skilled labor—that is the prospect in store for Russia. The old folks may resist the new things, may never understand what is going on. But their children will take the new power as a matter of course, build their lives on it, grow, think, find happiness.

Says the New York World: "To bring the Russian people into contact with the rest of the world through the medium of an expanding commerce will prove the most effective antidote to the fantastic teachings of the Bolshevist leaders." And as a matter of fact, the extreme teachings of Bolshevism have already given way before the needs of commerce. The government is settling down into a surprising stability.

If this American hydro project goes through, it means an enormous gain in all directions for Russia. And it means that there will be more and more American engineering projects there with their accompanying benefits.

More than all else it means the awakening of the peasant to the modern world.

What Other Editors Say

THE "RAGGED BEGGAR SUNNING."

Whittier, in one of his best-known poems, thus characterized the little country schoolhouse. Some of the speakers at the National Congress of Parents and Teachers at Hotel Statler stressed the fact that, since Whittier's time, the "little red schoolhouse" was still very much of a ragged beggar, lacking almost every facility for real education, without proper heating or ventilating equipment, cheap, unsanitary, and in too many instances run by a school board which spends less time thinking of it than about the sawdust in the general store."

The speakers told how the parents in the state of Missouri, followed by organizations, was bringing about wonderful improvements. One instance was given where a Parent-Teacher group found that the children were sadly in need of warm lunch. One of the patrons provided a kitchen equipment. Another noticed that the utensils were out of place in the schoolroom, and a lean-to kitchen was built. At the next meeting, lunch was served in the new addition. Those present contrasted its neat, clean appearance with the shabby old schoolhouse, and right there decided to put up a new one.

Many country school districts are poor. But none is so poor that, through organized enthusiasm it could not follow this excellent example. In some cases consolidation is demanded. But, as the president of the Parent-Teachers body said, the country school, as it stands, is so close to its own little community that it ought to be put on its feet. Parent-Teacher organizations can do it. Through their aid the little red schoolhouse may be lifted from the ragged beggar condition and approach nearer that of the best city institutions.—St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Washington—Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur doesn't believe in boxing, it seems.

On the night of the Dempsey-Tunney battle in Philadelphia he refused to let commercial airplanes take off at League Island flying field, which is under navy control.

The commercial flyers had to go elsewhere, and a plane was wrecked in an attempt to take off from a field which wasn't so good.

It will be interesting to learn whether Wilbur subscribes to the commissioning of Gene Tunney as lieutenant in the marine reserve corps.

In other words, here's the world's heavyweight champion going around as a naval officer!

Wilbur hasn't commented so far.

The "gobs" had a boxing carnival planned for the night of Sept. 21 at the Norfolk (Va.) naval base. Wilbur called that off.

An effigy labeled "Wilbur—Flathead" was used as a punching bag in the gymnasium at the base until an officer saw it and had it destroyed, 'tis said.

It's a story that's denied—officially. Unofficially it's true in all its gruesome details, if the bulk of the enlisted personnel at the base are to be believed.

If Secretary Wilbur had put his foot down on the carnival the minute it was suggested, the gobs wouldn't have been so sore.

He didn't do it however, until after several thousand dollars had been spent on advertising and a whole stack of tickets had been sold, for the benefit of the navy relief fund.

It was against naval regulations, he said.

The reason some merchants have to charge so much is they have to charge everything.

Huge Sums Spent to Combat Tuberculosis

About Five Million Dollars Netted From Christmas Seal Campaign Last Year, Committee Reports.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The Christmas Seal Sale which netted only $3,000 the first year it was tried, 1907, brought in $4,879,000 last year, according to a statement made by Dr. Linsly R. Williams, Managing Director, National Tuberculosis Association, in an address here this afternoon before the Fifth Conference of the International Union Against Tuberculosis.

In attendance at this meeting are tuberculosis specialists from 22 foreign countries, and more than 500 health workers from every section of the United States.

In explanation of the progress and organization of anti-tuberculosis work in the United States, Dr. Williams said: "During the last eight years the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliated organizations have directed earnest efforts to introduce health education into the public school system. The methods have consisted largely of an endeavor to teach children in various grades the simple rules of health, and to train them to acquire health habits. These methods have received widespread approval, and have been introduced into the school systems of many of the states. More than a million children are receiving daily instructions in health at the present time.

"As a rule official departments of public health are insufficiently supported by the state or city, and almost everywhere unfilled gaps exist. Appropriating bodies curtail expenditures for popular education, so this is left largely to voluntary agencies. But there are maintained by various states, counties and cities, 312 hospitals and sanatoria, with 38,097 beds. Altogether in the United States today we have more than 600 permanent dispensaries and 1,945 health officers, while 11,000 nurses are engaged in public health work. Court to Divorce Mill, Says Judge

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 1.—Judges of cities near Milwaukee have started war against Milwaukeeans who attempt to make their courts a second "Reno."

Judge David D. Agnew of Waukesha severely censured the practice of Milwaukeeans obtaining divorces outside Milwaukee county and has announced that in the future only cases from his home county will be tried in his court.

"Unless an affidavit is presented showing it is for the convenience of witnesses, we are refusing to hear Milwaukee divorce cases here," Municipal Judge E. R. Burgess of Racine, who has joined Judge Agnew's movement said.

Up until a year ago, the Racine and Kenosha courts are said to have served as a "regular divorce mill" for Milwaukee couples.

"Divorce cases should be heard in the county in which the litigants live," Judge Burgess stated. "The merits of the case can always be ascertained better by the judge in the home county where the attorneys are able to make a thorough and first hand investigation. Nearly always there are ulterior motives in going out of the county in which they live to seek divorce."

Addition to White Way Is Inaugurated

Lights On at 7:15 o'clock Last Night. —New Type of Reflecting Shades Used.

The newest addition to Maryville's "white way" came into being at 7:15 o'clock last night, when the lights were flashed on in the block on West Second street between Main and Buchanan.

On each side of the street are three standards, painted green, surmounted by a single lamp of the type most popular in the larger cities. The lamps are enclosed by Novalus reflecting shades, for which greater lighting efficiency is claimed than in the old-style shades.

The Second street white way burns all night. On Main street, where there are five lamps to the standard, four are turned off at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Lorraine Seilaff Not on Stand Yet

Star Witness Is Sidetracked In Effort To Prove Other Charges Against Mrs. McPherson.

Los Angeles, Oct. 1.—Apparently ignored by all save her attorney, Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Seilaff, co-defendant in conspiracy charges lodged against Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, famous woman evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, today had not yet been called to the stand at the preliminary.

Mrs. Seilaff has sworn that Mrs. McPherson offered her money to produce a "Miss X" to pose as the companion of Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus temple radio operator, at Carmel.

Mrs. Seilaff, admittedly the state's star witness, has so far been sidetracked while the state has been attempting to prove that Mrs. McPherson was the woman companion of Ormiston at Carmel at a time when her followers thought her drowned and during which time Mrs. McPherson claims she was held a captive in Mexico by kidnappers.

$200,000 Estimated as Wabash Damage

Trainmaster At Stanberry Says Loss In Business Due To Flood Can Hardly Be Fixed.

According to the Stanberry Headlight, James C. Ferritor, trainmaster of the Wabash railroad said the loss to the Wabash during the recent flood would probably run up to $200,000. Mr. Ferritor stated that there was no accurate check on the loss, as one could not determine the loss of business.

Mr. Ferritor and a force of 100 men followed the flood waters. And following the recession at Clyde.

Mr. Ferritor said yesterday the water was exceptionally long in going down. At Sumner the water was from 18 inches to two feet over the tracks and that had not receded last Friday.

From Gallatin on down to Brunswick thousands of acres of farm land were under water last Friday and many acres of farm land were under water last Friday and many acres of corn were completely covered by the water. In many places, as far as the eye could see, there was nothing but water.

The water had all left the tracks the first of the week and train service has all been resumed on the Omaha division. Practically all of the trains are now running on schedule.

State Highway No. 18 Closed Temporarily

Farmers and Residents of Burlington Junction Start Work Today to Make Roads Passable.

Highway No. 18, west of Burlington Junction, is temporarily closed on account of the bad condition of the roads along the river bottom near that highway. The Burlington Junction Post this week says:

Patrolman Lester Crane with the help of farmers and people in town will start work tomorrow (Friday) in trying to provide a temporary road across the bottom on Highway 18. It has been almost impassible for a month. Everyone who can is asked to be on hand early in the morning. Broken bricks from the old brick yards will be used in filling the mud holes.

H. M. Miller, Maintenance Engineer of the St. Joseph Division of the Missouri Highway Department was here Wednesday looking over the highway situation west of town, across the Nodaway river bottoms.

Mr. Miller states that the maintenance allotment for this division is nearly exhausted, and that in his division of some 800 miles there are many bad places in need of work, and for that reason much of the maintenance for the rest of the year will have to be done on a donation basis. Under ordinary conditions the maintenance allowance would have taken care of all needs nicely, but no one could forsee what has happened in the past thirty days, and road conditions are worse than at any time since the maintenance system was inaugurated. With a week or ten days of fair weather, conditions would straighten out to some extent.

Mr. Miller says that the Department is willing to do anything that it can do to keep the road passable, and that as soon as the weather dries up sufficiently some filling or repairing will be done on the road between the two bridges.

He had Patrolman Crane take down the detour signs on the north road, as he considered the road dangerous, so Highway No. 18 west of Burlington Junction is temporarily closed.

Gentry County May Vote Bridge Bonds

Gentry County may submit a bond issue for the purpose of repairing the damage done bridges by the recent floods, according to the Albany Capital. Thirteen bridges across rivers and untold damage to smaller bridges across creeks and ravines in all parts of that county was done. The damage is estimated at $100,000.

The Capital says:

Four main traveled roads running across the county are blocked as the result of the bridges being out, and many people in certain localities are unable to leave their homes without traveling a long distance in order to reach a ford across the ravines.

In order for a bond election to be called a petition having 200 signers would have to be presented to the court and they could then order an election, and two-thirds majority will be required to pass the bond issue for the $100,000 required for the necessary work. This would require everyone in the county to put their shoulders to the wheel and work for the best interests of all.

The court, unofficially, considered this proposition Tuesday but decided to take no official step until their October meeting.

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for October 3, 1926.
Numbers 10.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

When Uncle Sam decided to send a million men overseas to take part in the world war, he had a problem on his hands. There were plenty of men willing to go but they were unprepared. The plan adopted was to organize concentration camps, pour into these camps thousands of young men and train and drill them. The best officers of the United States army were placed in charge and for months the men were drilled and lectured and trained until they were realy to be sent overseas.

This is almost identically the plan Moses adopted with the Hebrews after they crossed the Red Sea. He had an unorganized, untrained mob. He also had definite plans for the making of a nation and a definite objective point. The promised land was occupied. The owners would certainly not give up without a fight. Moses had no fighting force and was obliged to train his people.

In this work he remained for a little more than a year at Mount Sinai. Not only were the men trained and drilled for military work; they were taught civic duties. Laws covering every line of endeavor, covering the special cases applicable to this people, were laid down and enforced. Gradually and slowly, very slowly, the people began to understand a little about what was expected. There were fine men amongst them. The tribe of Levi was a great help. Joshua, a young man of unusual ability soon became the right hand man for Moses, who leaned on him heavily. Jethro made a long visit and gave splendid advice and helped organize. Hur, Moses' brother-in-law, stood alongside of Joshua. Aaron headed the Priesthood. The unorganized mass was whipped into an organized nation, completely equipped with military, civil and sanitary laws. This is the story of Leviticus and the first ten chapters of Numbers.

One morning Moses called together his leaders. The people were becoming impatient. The question under discussion was are we ready to move. Moses told his plans, explained where God had directed that he go next and they held a council of war. There were some objectors. Aaron and Miriam (Miriam was in that conference) argued against moving. Joshua was eager to go and Hur backed him up.

A man who had been of immense help to Moses was there but he said nothing. It was Hobab, the Midianite, a brother-in-law of Moses. He had helped drill the regiments, he had taught the people how to live off the desert, he explained how to find water and the best lines to march. He was a desert born Arab.

Moses turned to Hobab and asked his opinion and Hobab gave it, but said he was through. He intended now to go back to his home. Everybody protested. They liked Hobab. Moses promised everything but Hobab was adamant. Then Moses changed tactics and instead of promises he appealed to Hobab to go along because he could be of such great value and help. He would be the eyes of the march.

I like to think that this argument caused Hobab to agree where all his inclinations were to go back to his well organized people to an easy time in an established country and against what he deemed an uncertain venture. He chose to take a difficult course because of the use he could be to his new friends.

And so the hosts of Israel started out on the long trail which was to end in the establishing of a great and prosperous kingdom.

It was their move. God had taken care of them, had led them out of slavery, had established them on the pleasant mountain plateau and had seen them organized. No doubt there were many who did not want to move, they were well pleased and desired no more adventures.

This happens always. We become satisfied and static. There are hundreds of Christians in our churches who are getting along very well, who are not doing a thing. They have had enough church training to be of some use but they prefer to take the line of least resistance and do as little as possible.

A proposition comes to support a mission field. These static Christians hold back. Why not let well enough alone? There are plenty of heathens right here at home. A movement is made to build a new church. Why undertake such a job? Our old church building is good enough.

God expects us to up stakes and march when he gives the word and he will give the word whenever the time comes.

It is your move. Have you done anything for the church or for the public or for humanity recently? Are you sitting quietly in the home near Mount Sinai after having seen the glory of the Lord in the lightning and have received the tablets of the law? God has permitted you to be educated, to become equipped for some service and you prefer to sit at ease on the front porch. You do not even attend the Sunday School and help. Perhaps you might be a valuable organization leader. It is your move.

The invitation Moses gave to his brother-in-law, Hobab, rings in my mind. It is the invitation we should all give to every man and woman not in the church work. Moses invited Hobab to go along with them, offered him a fine responsible position, but Hobab shook his head. He was, in fact, homesick for the mountains of Midian. Moses said:

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good; for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel."

I know from my letters and from men and women who talk to me about these articles that there are hundreds of people, not church members, who are interested in the study of the Bible, who read and think about the history of the peoples of the Bible and who yearn to have a part in the promises it contains. They are uncertain, they object to some theology and refuse to agree to practises. To all of these we extend the invitation which Moses gave to Hobab. Come thou with us and we will do thee good.

I give you the words of Moses, a pledge from God, as applicable today to every man or woman who is ready to move at the bidding of the Lord, as in the day when Israel left the comfortable camp at Sinai.

"The Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel." The Lord hath spoken good concerning His Church today. It is your move.

ISRAEL JOURNEYING TOWARD CANAAN.

Lesson Text.—Numbers 10.

11. And it came to pass on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, that the cloud was taken up from off the tabernacle of the testimony.

12. And the children of Israel took their journeys out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in the wilderness of Paran.

13. And they first took their journey according to the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

29. And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel and Midianite, Moses' father-in-law, We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, I will give it you: come thou with us, and we will do thee good: for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel.

30. And he said unto Him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred.

31. And he said, Leave us not I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us instead of eyes.

32. And it shall be if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that what goodness the Lord shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

33. And they departed from the mount of the Lord three days journey: and the ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them in the three days journey, to search out a resting place for them.

34. And the cloud of the Lord was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

35. And it came to pass, when the ark set forward, that Moses said, Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered; and let them that hate thee flee before thee.

36. And when it rested, he said, Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel.

Golden Text.—Come thou with us, and we will do thee good.—Num. 10:29.

Mississippi Higher Than for Fifty Years

(Ravenwood Gazette)

In a letter from Rev. Underwood at New London, Ia., written Sept. 20, to friends here he says in part: "It is still raining up here; they say the Mississippi river is higher than it has been in fifty years. Thousands of acres of corn are under water and many roads are impassable. I do not think there has been a time since we came that would have been as suitable for our coming as the day we left Harmony. We certainly have a nice church building here; it resembles the First M. E. Church at Maryville, a little inside. We have eleven Sunday School rooms all of which can be opened up into the main auditorium. Then the basement has the church parlors, dining room and kitchen. We had our church business meeting and both churches voted to raise the pastor's salary $100 this year; this will make my salary $1600.00."

Elmo M. E. Church, South.

The pastor, T. M. Taylor, will preach at North Grove at 11 o'clock Sunday and at Elmo at 7:30 that evening. At North Grove there will be installation of officers.

M. E. Church, South.

Our services were very well attended last Sunday. However, we hope that the attendance will increase from Sabbath to Sabbath.

The pastor will preach at Centenary next Sunday. He will be glad to see any of his members from Skidmore or New Hope.

We are very anxious that every teacher be in their place at the Sunday School. The Sunday School is one of the greatest organizations of the church. Of course the Church services held at 11 o'clock, and 7:30 o'clock are the most important services of the church. But the church service could not run without the Sunday School and Epworth League. The only way for us to succeed is for the organizations of the church to work together.

The Epworth League meets every Sunday evening at 6:30. This is the service where young and old are given an opportunity to publicly express themselves for greater usefulness in the Kingdom of God. Of course the younger people have more to do with this service than the older ones. However the older people are always welcome. The young people should not neglect their opportunities for advancing in the Christian life.

"The pastor desires to complete the entire organization of the church, for the year, some time in the near future.

We will have an official board meeting on Thursday night at 7:30.

Our prayer meeting meets every Wednesday evening at 7:30. We are studying the Gospel of St. John. Let everyone be present with their Bibles.

AT CLEARMONT

(From the Clearmont News.)

Baptist Church Notes.

We had about the usual attendance at the Sunday school.

The cold snap caught us without any stove in the church and when Sunday school closed we decided it was too cold to remain longer, so both preaching services for the day were called off, this seemed the only right thing to do.

A good session of the W. M. U. was held on Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. L. C. Curren was hostess, leader Mrs. Claude Skeed. A good program was rendered, an instructive and helpful meeting. The subject was, "Personal Service." Delightful refreshments were served.

Mrs. Laughlin and I go this week to our old home for a visit with relatives in Shelbina, Hannibal and Warren, Northeast Missouri. Will be away two or three weeks.

W. W. LAUGHLIN, Pastor.

Christian Church Notes.

The Sunday school attendance last Sunday showed an increase, and we believe the interest and enthusiasm justifies our belief that we shall have a larger attendance next Sunday. Come, add yourself to the growth of the church and Sunday school.

Plans are being discussed to send delegates to some of our near by Sunday schools and have them report to the school here of the methods that the other schools use and the interest others show in Sunday school work. Full announcements of the plan will be brought before the school next Sunday. Be sure and come, we will need you for a delegate. Church and Communion services next Sunday a. m. and church services at 7:30 p. m.

M. E. Church.

The leaks in the church roof have at least been stopped. The next step is to repair the broken plaster, then frescoing, or in some way beautify the interior of the building, and later in the year we hope to paint the exterior. Our ambition and ideals are high for the church. We ought to make it the most attractive place in the community. Around it, center all life worth while. The official board at its regular meeting Monday night, ordered a six foot cement sidewalk, leading from the steps of the church to the street, about twelve feet long. This will be a very great improvement, as heretofore we have had no decent way of approach.

Now, I am asking that the whole membership of the church get busy this year, attend services at every possible opportunity, and urge others to attend. If this is done, what will happen? A house crowded with happy worshippers every Sunday.

J. HOWARD THOMPSON, Pastor.

AT PICKERING.

Christian Church.

The Sunday school attendance last Sunday was 114. This was very good, considering the condition of the roads and weather. We are glad to note that the average attendance for the last quarter is 104. When we think of the rainy Sundays that we have had, cutting the attendance a few times to around thirty, we can see that the average also is pretty good. We are now starting into the fall quarter. How many will pledge themselves that they will do their very best to make the average for this quarter at least 125? It can be done if we all have enough determination.

The last Sunday evening service was partly turned into a discussion meeting on the subject, "What is the Church going to do with the empty seat?" Talks were made by several, and the discussion was continued in the official board meeting Tuesday night. The general opinion was that:

"The world is too much with us, late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

Come to church next Sunday morning and night and use your powers for the upbuilding of the Kingdom of God, and your own soul. Sermon subjects for next Sunday: Morning, "Christianity at Work;" evening, "Lost in Wonder, Love, and Praise."

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

Moses—the Presumptuous

In their wanderings, the Israelites came into the wilderness of Zin and made their camp at Kadesh. Miriam, sister of Moses and Aaron, died there and there they buried her.
Once again there was a scarcity of water and the people suffered. So loud were their complaints that Moses and Aaron went to the Tabernacle to commune with Jehovah.
As the glory of Jehovah appeared to them within the tent, Moses and Aaron fell upon their faces. "Take the rod," Jehovah commanded, "Speak to the rock and it shall give forth water."
"Ye rebels," cried Moses, "Shall we bring forth water out of this rock?" Twice he smote it—then water gushed forth. But in this Moses had acted presumptuously. Jehovah warned him that he could not lead his people into the promised

The VANITY CASE

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

MRS. PRENTISS sees lights mysteriously appear and disappear in the HEATH household next door one night and the next day Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog with the murder of MYRA HEATH and the disappearance of her husband, PERRY.

House guests of the Heaths are LAWRENCE INMAN, heir to Myra's fortune, and BUNNY MOORE, vivacious, golden-haired, to whom suspicion points because of her refusal to answer questions.

Myra Heath was peculiar: She never used cosmetics, never wore colors. She had a mania for collecting glass, and it was a rare old whisky bottle from her collection that the murderer used to kill her. Candles were burning at her head and feet and nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Heath." Strangest of all, she was heavily made up and garbed in gay colors.

The peculiar thing about Heath's disappearance is that all the windows and doors had been locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Finger prints of Bunny Moore and Inman were found on the bottle.

At the Country Club the murder is discussed by SAM ANDERSON, Heath's rival for the club presidency; AL CUNNINGHAM, who is trying to solve the crime, and others. Some believe Heath the murderer. Anderson disagrees. TODHUNTER BUCK, nephew of Mrs. Prentiss and in love with Bunny, suggests to Cunningham that Heath also may have been murdered.

EMMA, a waitress in the Heath home, tells of Seeing Bunny ascend the stairs about the time of the murder, carrying her vanity case. Later Bunny is amazed to get a phone call from Perry Heath advising her to keep silent.

Detective Mott learns from HERRICK, the Heath butler, that Myra and Perry Heath had quarreled over Bunny the night of the murder.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"Did you ever hear or overhear any quarrels or small tiffs between Mr. and Mrs. Heath?" Mott asked him.

Herrick, after a stumbling interval, managed to get out the information that he had heard such.

"When last?" Mott asked.

"The—the night Mrs. Heath died," Herrick replied.

"Here, in this room?" the detective went on.

"Yes, sir. They were in here."

"And where were you?"

"In the lounge, sir."

"What were you doing there?"

"Just waiting to lock up the house. Mr. and Mrs. Heath were about to go upstairs."

"And they quarrelled?"

"Not to say quarrelled, sir. But they had words, like, and Mrs. Heath told the master that she knew his secret."

"Oh, she did! And what did he reply to that?"

"Oh, he said a lot of things, but I didn't half hear and I didn't get the drift anyway. But they talked about a divorce, and the lady said if the master's secret should get known it would be terrible."

"I don't think you know much about that conversation, Herrick."

"No, not much, sir."

"Well, then, don't try to repeat it. Was Miss Moore's name mentioned?"

"It was, sir." Herrick flashed an apologetic look at Bunny.

CHAPTER XXV.

While the confab was going on in the Heath studio, Mrs. Prentiss was sitting at her window, wondering whether to go over to the Heaths' house or not.

Her curiosity was as strong as usual and her inclination was to go, but a strange sense of caution held her back.

She felt, intuitively, that she could do no good over there and might do harm. Moreover, she could have a report of what had transpired, when her nephew and her guest reappeared, and so, Mrs. Prentiss sat, waiting and thinking.

The telephone rang, and Mrs. Prentiss answered it herself. This was her custom, for her quick curiosity never could wait for the intervention of a servant's offices.

A man's voice said, "May I speak to Miss Moore, please?"

"Who is calling?" Mrs. Prentiss responded, in a tone which she endeavored to make sound like that of a servant.

"No matter. Merely ask Miss Moore to come to the telephone. This is important."

The voice was cold, dictatorial and impatient. Clearly the speaker was in a temper.

Now, Mrs. Prentiss did not know Perry Heath well, but her ever present intuition hinted to her that it might be she was listening to his voice.

It didn't sound exactly like Heath, but some voices are different on the telephone, and she couldn't be sure.

Taking a chance, she said, still in the deferential tone of a servant:

"Is this [illegible] Heath? Miss Bunny [illegible] speak on the tele[illegible]

[illegible]rd the astonished gasp at the other end of the line, and grinned with satisfaction.

But the reply came: "Heath? No, this is—this is Jackson. Please tell Miss Moore I must speak with her. You may say I have important news for her."

Suddenly Emily Prentiss felt that she was overstepping the bounds of propriety. She was a gentlewoman, not a detective, and she had no right to intercept or eavesdrop upon a private communication.

So she said simply, "Miss Moore is next door at the Heath house. If you wish, you can call her there."

"Thank you," was the response, and without further goodby, the voice ceased.

The advice, however, was followed, for in few moments later the telephone bell rang in the Heath studio.

Inman reached for the receiver, but Mott was too quick for him.

Grasping it first, the detective said briskly: "Hello!"

"Hello," said a man's voice, "I want to speak to Miss Moore, and make it snappy!"

Though not very quick-witted, Mott was ingenious, and endeavoring to sound like Herrick, he said: "Miss Moore ain't here, sir."

"Yes, I am!" cried Bunny, so loud that her voice carried over the wire as she sprang toward the instrument, and tried to wrest it from Mott's grasp.

And so agile and lithe were the girl's hands, that she succeeded, and in a moment, she was listening to Heath's voice.

"For Heaven's sake, Bunny, you are up against it! Now, listen, I have to speak fast. You fire Emma, send her 'way off so she can't testify against you. Get rid of Herrick, too, if you can. Those two are in cahoots, and they saw us on the terrace. By the way, there was a lot of money in the desk drawer. I'll bet Herrick has stolen that. If so, it'll give you a hold over him. You play innocent baby, and sneak home as spry as you can. I'm not coming back—not at all—get that?"

"Yes," Bunny said, faintly.

She helplessly dropped the receiver, and buried her face in her hands, while the great sobs came in her throat.

Mott grasped the receiver, but his "hello!" was answered only by a mocking laugh, and a jeering good by.

"That was Heath," he said, with conviction.

Mott called Central, and immediately had an investigation ordered that must result in knowledge of where the telephone message came from, at any rate.

Then, the detective turned to Bunny.

"You know where Perry Heath is!" he said accusingly, and the sound of his stern accents roused the girl from her crying spell.

"I do not!" she declared, and faced him with angry eyes. "See here, Mr. Mott, I'm tired of your prying into my affairs, of your innuendoes and questions. Now if you suspect me of a hand in my friend's death, then I'd rather you'd say so straight out, and stop this beating around the bush."

"All right, I will, Miss Moore. As you ask me to do, I am speaking straightforwardly. The time has passed for mincing matters. To my mind, the death of Mrs. Heath must have been brought about by one of three persons, her husband or one of her two house guests. Her husband is out of the question, because it was impossible for him to get out of the house and leave it locked and bolted behind him. Also, Mr. Inman is not a likely suspect, because he was in love with the lady.

"I am told that Mr. Inman's affection for Mrs. Heath was known not only to her husband and household, but to most of her friends and acquaintances. Now, even granting that he would be inheritor of her estate, Mr. Inman is not going to kill the woman he loves. Then, where can we look for the murderer but to her girl friend, the visitor of Mrs. Heath, who is, incidentally, in love with Mrs. Heath's husband, and will doubtless some day marry him?"

"What?" Bunny's face was deadly white and her eyes stared in horror and dismay.

"That's the way things look," said Mott. "Also, it must be remembered, that Miss Moore's finger-prints are on the broken bottle which was used as the weapon of death—"

"Mine are there, too, I am told," exclaimed Larry Inman.

"Yes, but yours are over those of Miss Moore—superimposed upon hers. This, as you can't help seeing, proves that the bottle was first used by Miss Moore, as a deadly weapon, and afterward picked up or examined by Mr. Inman. Perhaps he was present at the time, and wrested it from Miss Moore's hand, thus leaving his prints above her own. Now, the matter of the vanity case. It has been proved, to the satisfaction of the police, that the make-up on Mrs. Heath's face was applied after she was dead, and also that the materials used are the same as those in Miss Moore's vanity case. It is further assumed, though of course this cannot be a matter of actual proof, that the color was applied by either a woman or an artist. Had an intruder, such as a burglar or midnight marauder, committed this crime, he would not, probably could not, have applied that make-up with such a degree of skill and artistic taste. But an artist could do it, or—a woman could do it! Miss Moore, did you apply the cosmetics to Mrs. Heath's dead face?"

Mott intended this as a bold stroke. He turned suddenly and faced Bunny with this question, spoken in a brutal, threatening tone, and accompanied by a stern, accusing glare.

Bunny turned white, attempted to speak, then swayed in her seat, and toppled over sideways.

WHAT TO DO IF BABY HAS DYSENTERY

Food Should Be Omitted for a Day, and Then Barley Gruel Can Be Given With a Bit of Boiled Skim Milk.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

There are few undertakings more exacting than the proper feeding of a baby. It is important to select and prepare exactly the right combination of foods, and then the feeding must be regular as clockwork. Feeding, then, is a problem with the healthiest of babies.

When it comes to a sick baby, mother and doctor are at their wits' ends. It takes a lot of wisdom to decide whether to take food away entirely or whether to give the sick baby a modified diet of some sort.

Almost every bad symptom a baby has may be traced to wrong feeding. The fact of the matter is that most of the ailments of the human family are traceable to dietary mistakes.

If I had my way, every child in the public schools would be taught food values. He would know what to eat and why he should have these particular things. He should know what not to eat and why certain substances are improper for human consumption. Dietary knowledge is one of the most important, but one of the most neglected forms of knowledge.

At any time of year a little baby is likely to develop dysentery. The baby is sure to have trouble unless the food is well prepared in utensils which are themselves free from contamination.

In spite of every precaution, there must be times when the baby will be the victim of some intestinal disturbance. Dysentery is the most common of these.

The baby may have been perfectly well when suddenly there comes an attack of dysentery. This is accompanied by high fever. The child vomits. There are frequent stools and it is apparent well-developed diarrhea has made its appearance. As the symptoms progress and become severe we give the attack the name of dysentery.

Babies are such frail little things and seem to be so dependent upon an unceasing supply of food that the new mother hesitates to do as the doctor tells her in a case such as we are describing. In dysentery the giving of food must be stopped at once. For twenty-four hours the baby must have nothing except pure water. This must be given in frequent doses, and if there is a tendency to vomit it must be in small doses. Where the vomiting persists, even the water must be omitted.

The mother need have no anxiety about taking the food away from the child for a period of twenty-four hours. The natural strength of the baby will guard him against any unpleasant effect from this treatment.

After the first twenty-four hours a little food can be given. The best thing to try is a thin gruel, perhaps barley gruel. This may be the only food of the infant for a day or two.

If the child is poorly nourished and seems to need more food, he may be given boiled skimmed milk. At the end of two days a mixture of one part of milk to three parts of water may be given. If this food is continued for some time, orange juice should be added to the diet.

Good Hope

Real honest-to-goodness news in these parts is scarce. This weather is old and wearing on everyone and everything but we are living in hopes of a brighter day, if we do die in despair.

The fields are too soft to use a corn binder, consequently several neighbors are cutting corn with a corn knife—rather slow but sure.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. F. Dorcas moved last week from Clearmont to Bolckow, where he will preach this conference year. A letter has been received from them saying they were wonderfully well pleased with the outlook in their new field of labor. But the most building and repair work that is being done are bridges and culverts—so many have to be fixed.

Several men are picking seed corn, on the side, as they gather the corn for the hogs. Some would hog their corn down if the fields were not so soft.

CLOSING GRAIN REVIEW.

Chicago, Oct. 1.—Wheat rallied after an easy opening on the Chicago Board of Trade today and registered good gains at the close, but corn failed to share in much of this strength.

The strong tone of Winnipeg, which was caused by rains in the Canadian Northwest, was reflected in the local wheat pit.

Corn made some advances on the strength of wheat but there was little snap to the market. Profit taking easily wiped out most of the gains.

Oats had a little better tone than corn, but did not get very far on this day of "watchful waiting." Prices around the cash tables were steady to ¼ cent higher.

Liquidations of October and November lard, and the delivery of over ten million pounds of the former, caused provisions to close even.

Pet Boa Constrictors Featured by Pet Shop

New York, Oct. 1.—The custom of having pet animals and birds has taken some queer turns in the last few years. Some pet stores are featuring everything from trained fleas to boa constrictors.

One western store quotes prices on monkeys and bear cubs, a Kansas City store advertises "everything from fleas to elephants" and a New York pet shop are featuring baby boa constrictors for $1.75.

Regardless of these "freaks" the canary and the dog are holding their own in their respective ranks. One California bird breeder has 5,000 Budgerigars or love birds for sale.

This year there are over 1,200 different styles of bird cages so colored and designed, that they will be in harmony with any type of interior decoration or any color of bird.

ALL SET FOR VALLEY RACE

BUT INTERSECTIONAL GAMES MOST IMPORTANT SATURDAY.

EYES ON M. U. TIGERS

Old Gold And Black Team To Tangle With Tulane—Texas University vs. Kansas Aggies.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 1.—All up and down the Missouri Valley this Saturday the yodeling of hog-callers, which has been rampant in recent weeks—will be drowned in the din accompanying the opening of the valley conference football season.

Three intersectional games of more than usual interest are included in the schedule for the opening of the valley season. Only two of Saturday's games have any bearing on the race for the 1926 Missouri Valley conference championship. These are the Drake-Nebraska and Iowa State-Washington games.

Tulane, touted as the strongest team in the south, meets Missouri, the 1925 Valley champions, at Columbia in the feature intersectional game of the week.

Texas University, champion of their part of the country, are guests of Charley Bachman's Kansas Aggies at Manhattan. Much has been said about the unknown strength of the Aggies and coaches of the Valley will watch this game closely. With Chilli Cochrane and Dewey Huston, the kicking ace of the Missouri Valley, both in the line-up, the Kansas Aggies have the best educated toes in the valley.

The Oklahoma Aggies, demoralized by graduation last spring, are on their way to Ann Arbor to play in the Big Ten Conference company Saturday when they meet Michigan. At the least the Aggies hope to gain valuable experience from Michigan.

Nebraska's encounter with Drake here Saturday should be anything but drab. Drake swamped Nebraska in an Iowa blizzard at Des Moines last year and revenge is the attitude of the Cornhuskers. Nebraska has lost two games on home soil in three years and this tradition will add to Drake's difficulties in accomplishing their ambition for opening the season with a win.

Oklahoma remains idle this week, preparatory to meeting Arkansas next week.

Washburn of the Kansas state conference will make an attempt to defeat Kansas at Lawrence.

Little has been heard from the football camps of Iowa State and Washington and their encounter at St. Louis will disclose the ability of their 1926 squads.

Tennis Fans Shocked by Richards' Plans

Already Dizzy From Season of Upsets, American Tennis Fans Dazed by Professional Move.

New York, Oct. 1.—Tennis fans, still dizzy from a season of upsets, the loss of the national singles championship to France and the invasion of Suzanne Lenglan, had another shock today following the announcement that Vincent Richards, third ranking American star, had turned professional under the banner of C. C. Pyle, promoter, who is also managing Red Grange and Mary K. Browne.

At a dinner given on the liner Paris last night in honor of the famous French woman tennis champion, the announcement was made that Richards would make a nationwide tour. Tennis experts agree that Richards earned the title of America's champion this year.

Richards did not discuss the terms of his contract but said the offer was one that he could not refuse.
